Craig E. Cayford specializes in the design, evaluation and implementation of nonqualified executive benefit programs.

Mr. Cayford has more than 30 years experience deriving creative solutions to retirement planning issues using both qualified and nonqualified retirement plans. His extensive experience enables him to work with clients on all aspects of the design of nonqualified retirement plans for senior management groups. These plans include deferred compensation plans, excess plans and supplemental executive retirement plans (SERPs).

Prior to joining Clark Consulting, Mr. Cayford was Vice President of the Portland office of Management Compensation Group, an executive compensation and benefits consulting firm. Mr. Cayford has also worked for the employee benefits consulting firms of Watson Wyatt Worldwide and William M. Mercer, Inc.

Mr. Cayford received a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics from the University of Maryland. He is an enrolled actuary under ERISA, an Associate of the Society of Actuaries and a member of the American Academy of Actuaries.
